

Upland student likes to grow bonsai trees

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

Lindsay Shiba belongs to a select group of gardening enthusiasts who can prune a forest in the afternoon and play tennis in the evening with time to spare.

The 19-year-old Upland student grows bonsai trees both as a hobby and for his work at Mt. Fuji Garden Center, an Upland nursery on Foothill Boulevard owned by his father, Katsumi.

Growing miniature trees is an art form developed in Japan centuries ago. Shiba explained the word "bonsai" comes from Japanese characters "bon," meaning to cultivate, and "sai," meaning pot or dish.

Shiba will be a sophomore this fall at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona, where he is studying ornamental horticulture.

He began growing bonsai trees in 1970 and his father and Serge Seminoff at the nursery were his first instructors. Shiba has also taken night classes from bonsai expert Kahn Komai in Temple City.

"It sounds kind of corny, but I like Japanese culture and I like plants," he said.

Although naturally stunted trees can be found, Shiba explained that bonsai trees require time and care before they are ready to be potted and displayed.

The nursery usually starts with stunted, older trees, which take less time to "train," he said. Shiba noted other methods begin with seeds, cuts and grafts.

Shiba said bonsai trees range in size from the "mame," four potted plants will fit on the palm of a hand, to five or six feet.

Training is the ongoing process of keeping the tree small and healthy while getting it to take the desired shape.

He said the nursery finds wild junipers, desert sage, scrub oaks and other naturally stunted trees in the high desert. With permission from the property owners, the trees are dug up following heavy rains when the weather is cool and there is less chance of the plants dying en route, Shiba added.

Wind, snow and lack of rain combine to produce naturally stunted trees in the high desert, Shiba said.

Shiba noted the nursery waits up to several years while the trees become acclimated and there is enough growth to work with before training starts.

He indicated the roots must be shallow enough to fit into a pot and strong enough for the plant to survive. Copper or aluminum wire is wrapped around the tree to bend it into the desired shape, Shiba explained.

Pruning and wiring the top of the tree may begin while the plant is still being cultivated in the ground, he added.

Although almost any type of tree can be dwarfed, Shiba said survival depends on climate and care.

"Out here we look for plants with smaller leaves and a slower growth rate. They tend to last longer."

The nursery uses organic fertilizer to slow the growth rate and cut down on the amount of training needed, Shiba said.

Beginners to bonsai growing often have several misconceptions about to care for the trees, he noted.

"People think they're houseplants, but indoors is too dry climate," Shiba said, adding that bonsai plants need sunlight like other trees.

He noted some buyers mistakenly believe they can successfully keep a tree stunted by starving it of fertilizer. Others do not water the bonsai trees frequently enough, Shiba added.

At the nursery, Shiba said a 12-inch-high tree is watered two or three times a day during summer.

"People don't realize the amount of care needed. We tell them, but they forget."

Shiba advised beginners to bonsai growing to take a class before trying to maintain the trees.

The art of bonsai growing comes from the attention given to the trees' shapes and lines in Japan, Shiba said. He compared the skill involved in getting the proper lines for limbs and trunk to traditional Japanese flower arranging.

Bonsai trees show a variety of styles: cascading growth down over the edge of the pot, landscaping of the soil in the pot and forest arrangements of several trees in one pot are some of the techniques.

He noted the pot or dish and the bonsai tree's placement in it enhance the plant's appearance like the frame of a painting.

Shiba belongs to a bonsai society with headquarters at the Arboretum in Arcadia and has placed high in several shows. He said bonsai growing is popular on the West Coast because of the large Japanese-American population.

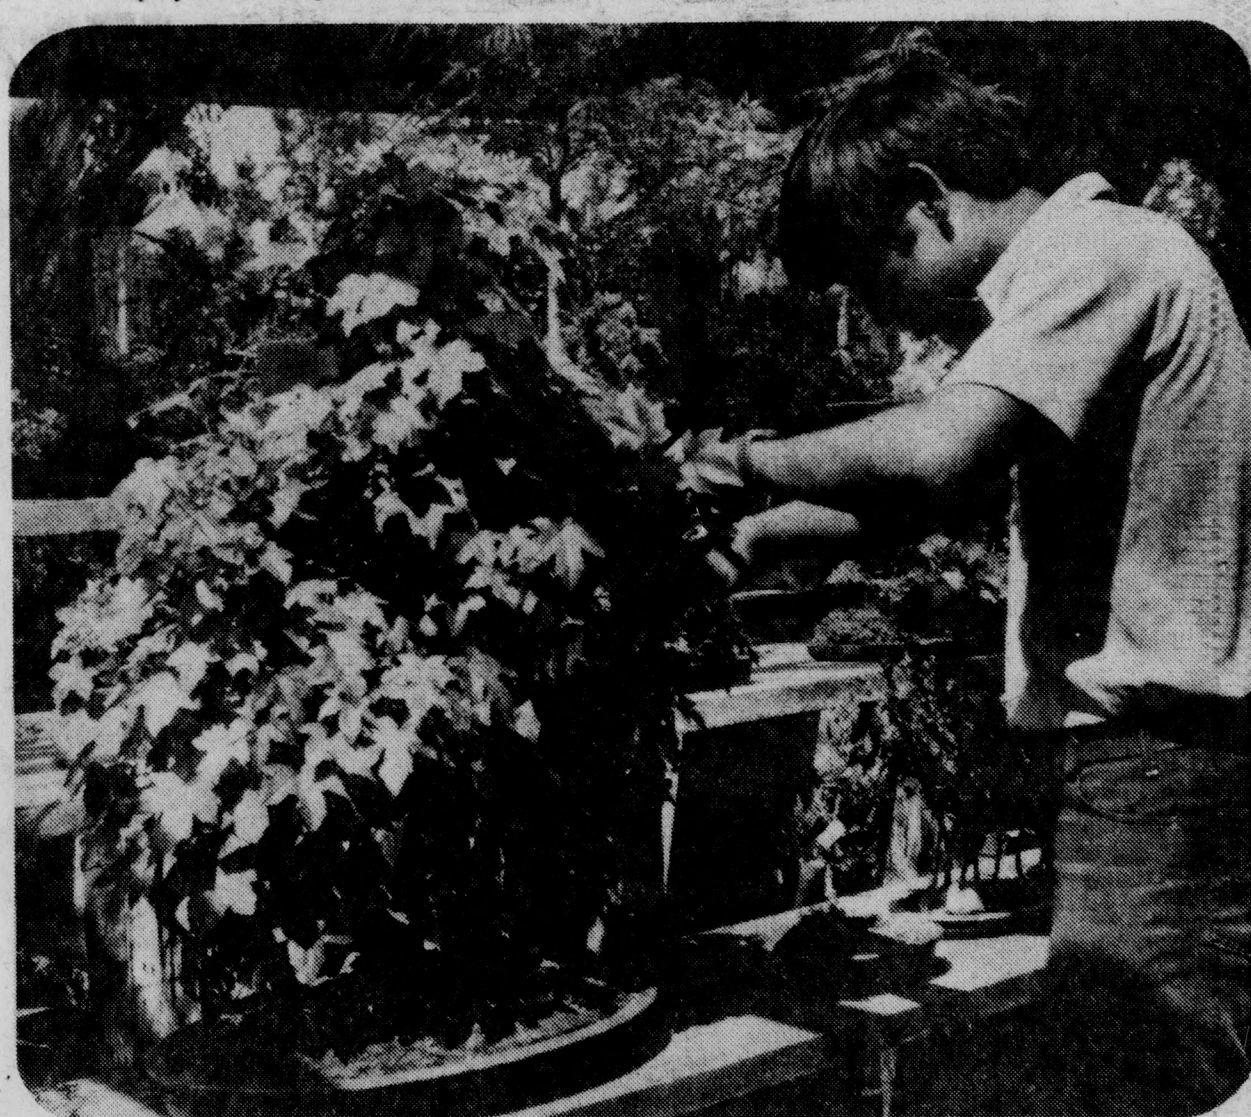

Evidence of bonsai's popularity is reflected in the chains the nursery now uses to prevent theft of the trees, which range in price from $15 to $200, Shiba added.

This single juniper tree in foreground is less than a foot high. It is a sample of a bonsai tree grown by Lindsay Shiba, who grows bonsai trees as both a hobby and for his work. Hospital chief denies asking for program's halt

By PETER WONG
Staff Writer

The administrator of San Antonio Community Hospital said he did not request the elimination of mental health inpatient services, contrary to what the proposed 1978-79 county budget indicates.

"If the money is available, we would have a program," John L. Towers, administrator of the Upland hospital, said.

The budget proposes the elimination of inpatient services provided by the hospital under a contract with the county mental health department. This would save an estimated $331,000.

The budget says the services were eliminated "at the request of the hospital." But Towers said this was not so.

The group which provides psychiatrists' services under the contract has told the hospital administration it cannot continue them, Towers said.

But he believes the hospital could arrange for the services of other psychiatrists and continue both the inpatient and day treatment programs.

Towers said it was only "a coincidence" that the group sought to cancel psychiatrists' services at the same time the county mental health department was looking for ways to save money.

"I can understand their (officials') problems with Proposition 13," Towers said.

"But we're proud of this program, which allows us to care for people in their own community. We think the West End was cut more than its proportionate share."

Towers said hospital officials and a number of West End county supervisors have worked for years to expand mental health services in the West End.

Under last year's contract between the hospital and the county mental health department, patients could be sent to the Upland hospital instead of the central mental health unit in San Bernardino.

It provided for 800 patient-days, a patient-day defined as a patient's stay in the hospital for a single day.

The state paid 90 percent of the program's costs under the 1957 Short-Doyle Act. The county paid the rest.

Under the Short-Doyle Act, the state has offered substantial financial support to counties to provide mental health care for those who can best be served in their own communities, rather than at state mental hospitals.

After Proposition 13's passage, the state Legislature allowed counties to decide for themselves whether they want to continue paying their 10 percent share of mental health programs for 1978-79, without losing the other 90 percent.

County Administrative Officer Earl Goodwin's proposed budget recommends the elimination of the county's 10 percent share. That amounts to almost $1.3 million in savings.

Supervisors' Chairman Robert O. Townsend said he would seek some way to restore part of the recommended cuts at San Antonio Community Hospital and trim some other programs.

Other recommendations affecting other county departments are as follows:

— Fee increases for hangar rentals, overnight aircraft parking and other services at county airports, including Chino Airport. This would raise $58,000. Without the increases, unspecified measures would be taken to cut services at Chino and Barstow-Daggett airports.

— A reduction of 30 percent in the number of inspections conducted by the weights and measures department. This would save $67,257 and eliminate three positions.

— Elimination of the county consumer affairs program, which has been part of the weights and measures department since 1971. This would save $58,942 and eliminate three positions by 1979-80.

Upland considers ballot referendum

The Upland City Council will consider a county proposal to place a referendum on publicly funded housing on the Nov. 7 ballot. The meeting will be held Monday at 7 p.m. in city hall, 460 N. Euclid Ave.

The referendum concerns making public funds available for housing for the aged, handicapped and low- and moderate-income residents.

A $1 million joint proposal with the city of Ontario, Cucamonga County Water District and Chino Basin Municipal Water District for a 1.5 million gallon a day sewage treatment plant will also be discussed.

The council will consider approval of plans for a landscaping project on Washington Boulevard and authorization for seeking bids.

An appeal of a planning commission decision denying a conditional-use permit for a three-story professional office building at the southeast corner of Euclid Avenue and D Street will also be considered.

A public hearing will be held on a request for a conditional-use permit for a one-lot subdivision to create 78 condominium attached units on 7.27 acres on the north and south sides of D Street with the western property line 283 feet east of the center line of Third Avenue.

Proposed county spending reaches $347 million

By PETER WONG
Staff Writer

Proposed spending by San Bernardino County government this year stands at a record $347.5 million. That would provide almost $460 in county services to each of the county's 756,000 residents.

But Proposition 13 has forced a variety of budget cuts that will affect practically everyone.

The board of supervisors will consider the proposed 1978-79 county budget starting Tuesday, the first of nine days of public hearings. A final budget is expected by Aug. 28.

County Administrative Officer Earl Goodwin has recommended $347.5 million in total county spending for the year which began July 1. That amount is up 5.2 percent over the $330.3 million budgeted for the previous year.

But several special funds are left untouched by Proposition 13, the state constitutional amendment that slashes county government's income from property taxes by 57 percent.

If the special funds are excluded, Goodwin's recommended budget is $262.8 million, $17.3 million less than the supervisors approved last year.

It is within this part of the county budget that Proposition 13 has made its impact. And the supervisors may decide to cut even more than Goodwin has recommended.

"Proposition 13 did not dismantle county government. Even after reductions, the county will provide a wide range of important public services throughout the community," Goodwin said in his budget message last week.

"The board of supervisors must ultimately make the decisions regarding which services to curtail, retain or expand when adopting the 1978-79 budget."

Of the $460 in county services each person would receive this year under Goodwin's proposed budget, the largest share would go to the category of welfare and social services — $169.36, up $20 from last year's adopted budget.

Other categories of proposed county spending per person are as follows:

— Law enforcement and justice, $75.42. The recommended amount per person is down about $2 from last year. This category includes the sheriff's department, the district attorney's and public defender's offices, the courts and the probation department.

— Public works, $73.12. This category includes road construction and maintenance, public transportation, airports, flood control, refuse disposal and regional parks.

— Health care, $71.63. The recommended amount per person is down almost $16.50 from last year. This category includes the county medical center, public health and mental health.

— Administration and fiscal group, $23.72. This includes the board of supervisors, the county administrative officer, the assessor, auditor-controller and treasurer-tax collector.

— Environmental improvement, $19.60, all but $8.37 of which would go toward federally financed community development projects. The rest would pay for county planning, environmental health and fire protection.

— Construction projects, $14.14.

— General services, $12.65. This category includes agriculture, the county library system, the museum, the registrar of voters and weights and measures.

Even after the supervisors finish budget hearings, the proportion of spending for three major county functions is not expected to change drastically.

Those functions — welfare and social services, law enforcement and the courts, and health care — account for more than two-thirds of all county spending proposed this year.

Welfare and social services are among the county programs that will be affected least by Proposition 13.

Others include community development projects intended to upgrade neighborhoods, road construction and maintenance, public transportation, and some medical services for the poor.

All of those programs are paid for by state and federal governments, "and they may continue at whatever level those independent sources provide," Goodwin said in his budget message.

"Most other county departments are financed by property taxes to some extent and their budgets must be adjusted to reflect a lower income. These budget recommendations focus primarily on the reductions in property tax-financed services."

Proposition 13 will cut county government's income from property taxes from $90.1 million in the past year (including taxes once levied independently by the county library system and the flood control district) to $38.6 million this year.

Property taxes accounted for about 25 percent of county government's total income last year. That will drop to 11 percent.

That loss will affect county departments in different ways.

Last year, local property taxes paid for 21 cents of every dollar spent on county welfare and social services programs. And that spending was required by state and federal governments, which put up the rest.

After Proposition 13 passed, the state agreed to assume nearly all county welfare costs for 1978-79.

That means local support for welfare and social services programs will drop to $2.1 million of a recommended $128 million in spending.

But county departments affiliated with the Law and Justice Agency have depended upon local property taxes for an average of 85 cents for every dollar they spent in the past year.

Local support for law enforcement and the courts will still amount to $44.1 million of a recommended $57 million in spending this year, or 77.4 cents of every dollar.

Since the supervisors can no longer raise or lower property taxes to pay for desired levels of county services, "it's a new ballgame," Supervisors' Chairman Robert O. Townsend said. "We must make the best use we can of the money we have."

R.N. appointed to committee

Rita C. Carroll, a registered nurse from Alta Loma, has been appointed to the county's emergency medical care committee. Supervisor Robert O. Townsend announced.

Ms. Carroll is an emergency room supervising nurse at Ontario Community Hospital.

She will take the place of Eleanor Ann Davis, who resigned. The term of office lasts until Jan. 31, 1979.

Property taxes tallied up to $61.9 billion from July 1976 to June 1977.

This represents more than 2.5 times the amount paid a decade ago. — CNS

Youths take safety run honors

"Some people laugh at me and think I'm corny when I tell them why I want to enter the law enforcement field. But I'm very serious about my reasons. I want to do something for my country. Lots of people complain about crime and violence but they don't do anything about it. I want to," said 16-year-old Mark Luethold, a member of the Ontario Police Department's Explorer Post 350.

Mark and his buddy, Norman Roach, both of Montclair, recently brought public honor to their post by placing first in the Class H, 8-Cylinder Car Division of the Police Advisory Council for Car Clubs' 25th Annual Youth Safety Run from Arcadia to Yosemite National Park. They averaged 18.875 miles per gallon in their 1978 Buick Le Sabre provided by Romero Buick, AMC & Jeep of Ontario. The boys took turns at the wheel during the 26-hour round trip. Recipients of huge silver trophies, the boys learned how to conserve fuel by doing such things as keeping the windows partially rolled up to lessen wind resistance, coming to easy stops, avoiding revving the engine while idling, and pumping the accelerator several times before turning the key when starting up.

"We had a blast. It was one of the best times we've ever had. And we definitely want to try again next year," the boys said simultaneously.

Both youths are equally enthusiastic about the Explorer Post program which they joined in 1976.

Norman, a Montclair

High School senior who runs the 440 and 220 in track and plays drums in the marching band, explained, "I'd see policemen around and wonder what they were doing. I asked a friend one day and he told me about the Explorer Post and I decided to apply. Mark and I have known each other since fifth grade and he was interested in law enforcement, too, so we filled out our applications together and took an oral examination at the Ontario Police Department. We passed and entered the San Gabriel Valley Law Enforcement Explorer Academy." The boys received 84 hours of instruction on penal and vehicle codes, police procedures, physical fitness and law enforcement methods at the academy, spending 12 Saturdays in classes. When they completed the program December 11, 1976, they joined Explorer Post 350, a group of about 25 14½-to-18-year-old boys and girls.

"Our post meets every Monday night at the Ontario Police Department where we continue our training in fire arms, self defense, laws and procedures and do military drills. Occasionally we go on "ride-alongs" with the officers. We have two main advisers — James Gettings and William Snyder — who work with us," Mark, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Luethold, said.

A Montclair High junior who works part time at the Upland Bakery, Mark plans to join the Police Cadet program when he's 18. "That will give me more experience so that when I'm 21, I'll have a better chance of becoming a police officer," he said. The slim, blue-eyed young man who wrestles in the 132 pound class for Montclair High plans to earn a bachelor's degree in law enforcement, too. So does Norman, the youngest of Mr. and Mrs. James David Roach's nine children.

"I have five uncles in Oklahoma who are police officers and my father used to be a police officer. After I finish college, I'll probably go to Oklahoma and join the police force there," Norman, who works as a stockboy for a Montclair pharmacy, said.

Right now, both 16-year-olds, still buoyed by their Safety Run achievement, are thinking of new ways to conserve fuel.

Hospital food

San Antonio staff proud of its meals

The reputation of food served at most hospitals usually gets as many lumps as week-old gravy, but the staff at San Antonio Community Hospital believes its meals are comparable to a "high-class hotel."

Andre Garfield, chef at the Upland hospital, said one key to serving appealing food, despite heavy volume, is to prepare one meal at a time.

"Dinner is cooked for dinner. In other words, we don't cook a week ahead of time — a lot of places will make gravy by the potful," he said.

Charles Musser, the hospital's new director of dietary, said the hospital serves some 2,000 meals a day, including 500 eggs for every breakfast.

A large percentage of those meals are served in the hospital's 24-hour cafeteria to employees and visitors, Musser said. He added the kitchen also prepares food for the Meals on Wheels service to shut-ins and for banquets and other hospital events.

Preparing as many dishes as possible from scratch is one way the hospital tries to keep quality along with quantity, he said.

Garfield, who was hired by the hospital earlier this year, added that the hospital "buys No. 1 merchandise."

Helen Brunell, chief registered dietitian, joined Garfield and Musser in stressing the role appearance of food plays at the hospital.

Along with supplying a balance of nutrients, Mrs. Brunell said, the hospital strives for the right "color combination" for each serving.

Musser pointed out that dominant lettering on the menus matches the color of tray cover mat on which dishes are placed. The final touch for each tray is a flower in a small vase.

Mrs. Brunell explained that patients need an "extra appeal" often in order to regain their appetites. Confined to bed, patients find meals and snacks are among their few pleasures while in the hospital, she added.

Musser noted, "The hospital understands that the patient doesn't want to be here."

The tableware certainly resembles the "high-class hotel"

Garfield mentioned. He pointed out that the knives, forks and spoons are silver plated rather than stainless steel. Linen napkins, not paper, are propped up in silver-plated rings.

San Antonio Community Hospital runs a small assembly line where food service workers — guided by menus the patients have marked — place dishes on trays moving on a conveyor belt.

Musser said the hospital tries to let no more than six minutes elapse between the time the tray first starts moving along the conveyor belt and the moment when the patient is served.

A menu for dinner Saturday gives patients a choice of entrees: braised tenderloin tips with bordelaise sauce, Italian spaghetti with meat sauce or the chef's salad bowl.

Lunch and dinner menus list white, rose and red wine among the beverages.

Mrs. Brunell said patients make their menu choices before each meal, rather than a day in advance.

Musser has worked at the hospital for seven years, beginning as a management trainee and most recently as dietary manager before becoming director.

He noted that he was originally hired by the hospital with the goal of providing smooth transition when his predecessor, William Hunt, retired.

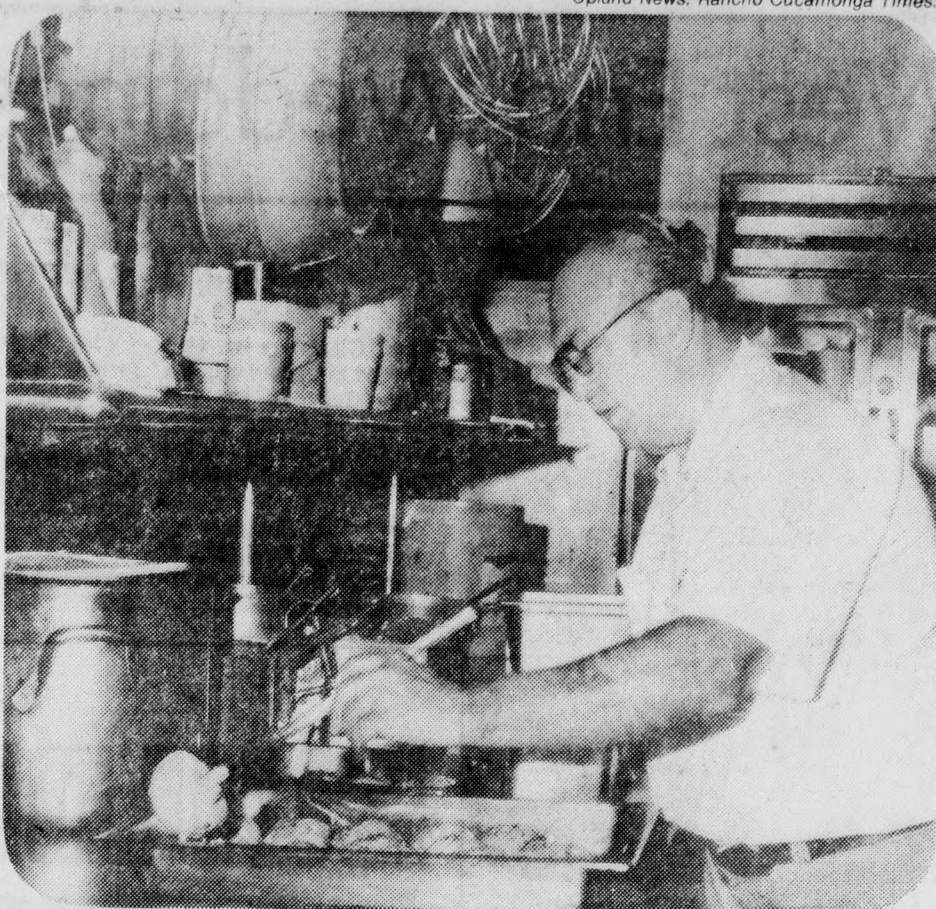

Musser said 89 employees work in the dietary department and about three-fourths of that number directly with food preparation.

The department's annual budget exceeds $1 million, he added. Along with assistant Freeda Strohm, Musser is in charge of preparing the budget, forecasting costs and maintaining quality.

He agreed with Garfield's comparison of hospital food service to that of a high-class hotel. Both men believed hospital food elsewhere generally has a poor reputation.

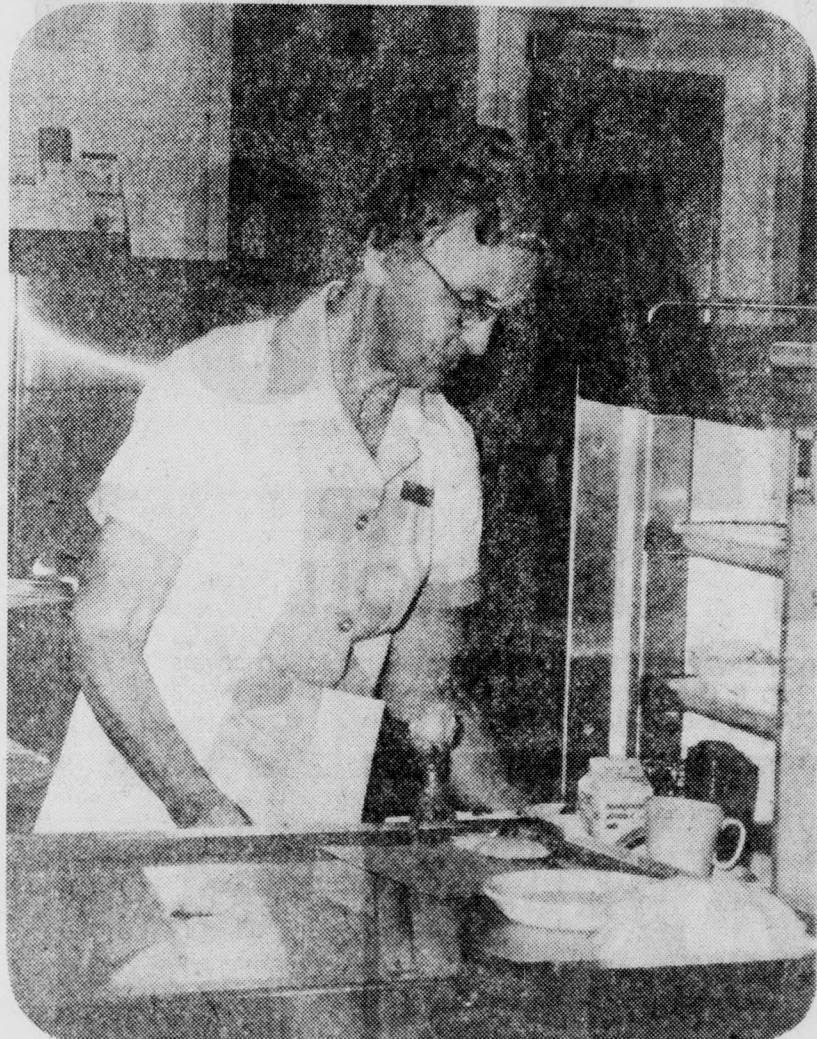

Garfield said advance food preparation and reliance on convenience foods accounts for the lesser quality.

"They serve 'Zippy' tacos — we make our own foods here," he said.

The food services staff at San Antonio Community Hospital prides itself on the quality and appearance of meals served at the Upland facility. Chef Andre Garfield ladles sauce onto crab shells stuffed with seafood. Garfield, a member of the American Culinary Federation, joined the hospital staff earlier this year. The 89 hospital employees in the dietary department serve 2,000 meals a day, both to patients and to visitors and hospital staff.

Food service worker Lee Schmidt places a tray in the rolling cabinet used to carry food to the hospital patients. In addition to providing meals for hospital patients and for employees and visitors who eat in the hospital cafeteria, the kitchen also prepares food for the Meals on Wheels service to shut-ins and for banquets and other hospital events.

United Way sets fund-drive goal

The West End United Way's executive board and cabinet committee have approved the 1978-79 fund-drive goal to be $785,476, an increase of 21 percent more than last year's goal, which was raised in a successful campaign. Don Crawford, center, current fund-drive chairman, has announced the drive's theme will be a "Round Up for '78-'79." Crawford discusses campaign plans with two division chairmen, Richard Burke, left, Division A, and Richard Gorow, Division B (all wear their round up hats). The drive for funds to support 33 agencies will officially start on Sept. 21. (Staff photo by Marge Gross)

Top county officials defend agencies criticized in report

Top county officials say the six agencies which oversee county departments do save money and make county government run more efficiently.

County Administrative Officer Earl Goodwin and agency administrators defended the system against criticism by the 1977-78 grand jury.

Goodwin inherited the agency system from his predecessor, Robert A. Covington. Although Goodwin abolished one of the original agencies shortly after he was appointed in 1976, he has kept the system relatively intact.

"It's a very effective management organization form, not only from the cost-cutting standpoint but from the management control standpoint," Goodwin said in a recent interview.

One of its benefits is that it reduces the number of officials who report directly to the board of supervisors, he said.

"Like many other people who look at the system," Goodwin added, members of the 1977-78 grand jury viewed the system only from the perspective of the more than 50 county department heads.

Goodwin described that view as "from the bottom up rather than from the top down."

When county supervisors set up the agencies between 1971 and 1974, they were delegating their executive responsibility to agency administrators rather than assuming it themselves, he said.

"It was not taken away from department heads," he said.

Agency administrators do more than prepare budgets, Goodwin noted.

They have the authority to appoint most department heads, although in practice, most key appointments are cleared with Goodwin and the board of supervisors. They also make recommendations relating to county programs and policies.

"So it's not just an extension of the county administrative office," Goodwin said.

Agency administrators meet weekly with Goodwin, County Counsel Alan Marks and the three assistant county administrative officers for budget, personnel and management services.

During these sessions of the executive cabinet, agency administrators' recommendations go to Goodwin for eventual presentation to the board of supervisors. "And there's nothing wrong with that," he said.

Goodwin was responding to the grand jury's statement saying that agency administrators in practice are responsible to him rather than to the board of supervisors, which appoints them.

He said he evaluates the administrators' performance yearly.

"And they are informally evaluated on a week-by-week basis on any given Monday," he said with a smile. He was referring to agency administrators' regular appearances before the board of supervisors.

As far as he is concerned, "I've tried to make it known that department heads are free to contact me" regarding their budgets and recommendations for the supervisors' agendas.

The grand jury's statement about the costs of the agency system is misleading although technically correct, Goodwin said.

"Most of the costs were in the (county) system all along," he said.

"It's not fair" to consider increases in administrative staff for the agencies as real growth in county government, Goodwin argued.

He said the agencies drew their staffs from county departments and the county administrative office. Few new positions were actually created, he said.

The administrator of the county General Services Agency, David G. Hitchcock, conceded that benefits of the agency system were "hard to pinpoint."

"I've not kept any kind of scoresheet on the money saved or the new expenditures avoided," Hitchcock said, although he believes the system has saved money.

Hitchcock stressed other benefits from the system in terms of better communication among departments related in function, better management of county departments and fewer officials reporting to the board of supervisors.

"It's a misnomer to consider these 'superagencies,'" he said.

Before his appointment in 1974, Hitchcock spent 15 years in Orange County government. Among his key jobs were director of finance and registrar of voters.

New sanctuaries to be built

Diamond Bar churches slated

Two Diamond Bar congregations are planning new church facilities.

The congregation of Northminster Presbyterian Church in Diamond Bar has approved designs for a new sanctuary and Sunday school addition.

The new sanctuary, a blend between modern and traditional concepts, is designed to seat 350 with expansion to 500.

Architect Neil Scribner described the structure as "a modified pyramid with structural beams reaching to the ground on all sides."

The interior will represent a "strong vertical volume" reaching 60 feet to the tip of the spire, he said and added, "Semi-circular seating will enhance the emphasis on participatory worship and fellowship."

A large rose-colored stained glass window on the shake-shingled slope roof will give a spiritual atmosphere to the interior as well as to the surrounding community, Scribner commented.

The Sunday school addition will provide for three extra classrooms for junior and senior high age groups. The rooms will also be used as a lounge and choir room. Construction on the Sunday school rooms is expected to begin this fall, and on the new sanctuary in early 1979.

Northminster Presbyterian Church purchased the first piece of property to be sold by Transamerica Corp. in Diamond Bar. The church first started meeting for worship in the post office in 1962.

In 1965, they moved to the newly constructed first-phase buildings at the present location.

Under the leadership of the Revs. Everett Cowan and Howard Still and Dr. Richard Engdahl, the present pastor, the church has grown to 400 members.

The building committee responsible for presenting plans for the new sanctuary and Sunday school expansion, include Bill Johnson, chairperson; John Mistry, Lenore Brown, David Johnson, Jan Hougren, Diana Garrett, Jay Mulder and Don Womack.

Northminster Presbyterian Church is located at 400 S. Rancheria Road in Diamond Bar.

Congregational Church Members of the Diamond

Bar Congregational Church voted in June to proceed with plans for building a new sanctuary.

Within two days the project executive committee, under the leadership of Phil Schaarsmith, met with Rev. Harris Heverley from the Board of Homeland Ministries to plan the capital funds campaign. (Cont'd on next page)

Designed to emphasize participation in worship and fellowship, plans for the new Northminster Presbyterian Church in Diamond Bar combine modern and traditional concepts. The church will have a seating capacity of 350 - 500 and will reach a height of 60 feet at the tip of its spire. Construction of the new sanctuary is expected to begin early next year.

Brethren Women state goals, discuss concerns at gathering

Florence Crago from the Fellowship Church of the Brethren, Ida Howell and Hazel Kennedy from the Pomona Church of the Brethren, and Dorothy Dupler, Joyce Deitsch, Leona Ikenberry, Gwen Miller, Paula Stanley and Anne Price from the La Verne Church of the Brethren were among nearly 300 women who participated in a recent nationwide gathering of Church of the Brethren Women to articulate hopes and goals of women in the church.

Other issues receiving church endorsement included an appeal for an extension of the ratification deadline for the Equal Rights Amendment, the need for dialogue with and understanding of homosexual church members, a request for use of resources outlining the history of women in the church. Workshops, general sessions, and small groups encouraged women to confront a variety of current issues, including discipleship, grass roots political action, women in the ministry, justice and nonviolence, sexism in the professions, and women and the Bible.

First-aid preparation could save pets' lives

By Robert L. Stear, D.V.M.

No one likes to consider the possibility that some day a favorite pet might be injured in an accident. Yet given the fact that most dogs and cats are free to roam the house and neighborhood, it's best to be prepared to administer first aid to your pet.

Your first step in providing first aid should be to take precautions against being bitten or scratched — even if your pet is normally good-natured. Do not assume that a pet in pain will recognize a familiar voice or face.

Use a blanket or jacket to cover the pet's head, or convert a scarf into a temporary muzzle so you can examine the animal safely. To examine a cat, you may need a friend to restrain the cat's feet while you hold its head.

In any accident, the most obvious injuries will be broken bones or heavy bleeding. Broken limbs usually stick out at an unnatural angle and must be immobilized with a temporary splint and some taping. The splint and broken leg should be wrapped firmly together to prevent further movement which may cause additional bleeding or tissue damage.

The easiest method to control heavy bleeding is direct pressure over the wound by applying a clean handkerchief with your fingers. Blood that is bright red and spurting out rhythmically comes from an artery; darker, slower flowing blood comes from a vein.

If you are unable to stop the blood in a few minutes using a pressure bandage, you may have to try a tourniquet. A tourniquet is a narrow strip of material (a tie, stocking or belt) tied tightly between the heart and the wound.

Tourniquets must be loosened for one minute at 5-8 minute intervals so that the tissues below the tourniquet are not completely deprived of oxygen and blood.

If your pet has stopped breathing, you must apply artificial respiration. Lay the pet on its right side, and gently pull the tongue out of its mouth as far as possible.

Apply even steady pressure on the rib cage, with your hands. Press down approximately every five seconds. Do it slowly but with strong pressure to the chest area. The firm pressure also massages the heart.

You may have to work on the animal a half hour or more. There's always the possibility of reviving an animal as long as there is a heartbeat.

Heavy bleeding, trauma, pain and severe fright all contribute to the development of shock, even if major injuries are not present. Major symptoms of shock in animals include pale, grayish gums and lips. Treat shock with warmth and comfort. Cover the animal with blankets and speak soothingly.

If the animal is fully conscious, stimulants such as warm coffee or strong tea may be given by the spoonful into the corner of the mouth. In small doses, they will stimulate the heart and blood circulation, fighting against shock.

If the pet is unconscious or semi-conscious, do not give it anything by mouth. Liquids may strangle an unconscious animal by passing into the lungs instead of the stomach.

While you are administering first aid, someone else should locate a board or stiff cardboard for transporting the animal to the nearest veterinarian. If necessary, tie the pet down so that it does not injure itself further.

Even if your pet seems to have no major injuries and is recovering from the shock of the accident, it's best to visit your veterinarian right away. Internal injuries may not show up immediately and delay in treatment may mean permanent damage.

Use pesticides with care

Do-it-yourself pest control can work in many cases...if the homeowner knows what he or she is doing, and follows a few safety rules by heeding the instructions on the pesticide label, according to the National Pest Control Association, a nonprofit organization that provides consumers with information about pest problems and solutions.

The first thing a do-it-yourselfer should do is to make certain the kind of pest to be dealt with. What a homeowner thinks is a flying ant could be a termite from a colony that is undermining the home.

Check it out with a county extension agent or a professional pest control operator to identify the enemy and the pesticide to be used. One pesticide may be effective in eliminating flies but not roaches, while another may work on roaches but not those brown ticks that rode home on the family pet.

Once the pesticide is purchased at a hardware or grocery store, read the label and follow the directions exactly. The association notes that "the manufacturer probably spent up to $6 million researching the best way to use it and his chances of being right are better than yours."

The overuse of pesticides is not only dangerous but can also be ineffective and a waste of time and effort.

For example, one could miss killing a pest completely by using a pile of powder instead of just a trace because the pest is more likely to go around it than through it.

Here are some tips from the association on safety:

— Don't use more pesticide than the instructions call for. Twice as much is not twice as good. You can't kill a tick or flea deader than dead, but you might harm the family pet in the process.

— Don't apply any pesticides near food or on surfaces that will come into contact with food. That includes foods for pets as well as food for use by humans.

Be sure you know the antidote or appropriate first aid treatment of the pesticide being used. Also know where your local poison control center is located.

— If an accident should occur, get in touch with the poison control center, your doctor, or a hospital emergency room immediately. Take the pesticide container with you in seeking medical help.

Stage Review

Jules Feiffer looks at life

By PATTI EMMERT
Staff Writer

Jules Feiffer takes an interesting look at human interactions in his play, "Hold Me!" presented by the drama department at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona.

The play, performed in a series of skits, focuses on the idiosyncrasies of people in their relationships with one another.

Feiffer's most famous cartoon character, the "Dancer," comes to life through Collen Keegan as an unquenchable celebrant of life. She dances in celebration of seasons, years, "the mundane," unaware of the emotional turmoil around her.

Bernard, the only character with a name, agonizes over the problems of being a "nice" person after being a really "rotten guy." Robert Weiss portrays Bernard as he travels from niceness back to rottenness and this time, even violence.

While the skits come to no conclusion about how to deal with human relations, some interesting insights are provided.

Monte Van Vleet as Man tells his young son that he really doesn't want the responsibility of being a parent after five years "of being with you, when I could have been in the company of grown-ups that I like."

"Don't make any emotional commitments," he warns the boy and gives him $10,000 to go to college and grow up.

Another character, played by Adrienne Stiff, is faced with talking to God for the sake of her dying husband. After a monologue describing her life for the past 15 years, she finally asks God not to take her husband. "Take the doctor," she suggests.

Margaret Szczepaniak as another nameless female character looks for love in a variety of places and people.

The Dancer seems to sum it up best as she dances her way through the Seventies. She recalls the failures and disappointments of each year until finally in 1978, she says, "Nothing else gets better, why should I?"

That seems to be what Feiffer is saying in "Hold Me," with his sketches of human inadequacy and alienation.

The hoped-for enlightenment of the Seventies has given way to discouragement and frightening loneliness beneath the humor of Feiffer's people.

The cast of "Hold Me" does an excellent job of projecting the complex emotions of each character under the stars at Cal Poly's "twilight summer festival," the setting enhancing rather than distracting from the performance. With excellent lighting and sound, "Hold Me" becomes one of the better ways to spend a summer evening.

"Hold Me" will be presented again 8 p.m. tonight. For information call (714) 598-4546 or 598-4549.

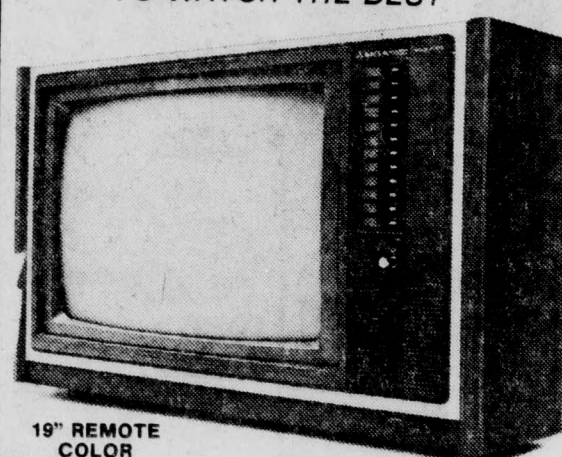

Long Beach plays planned

The Long Beach Theater Festival, the first major subscription season of plays initiated in Southern California in over a decade, will be held at the Center Theater of the Long Beach Convention and Entertainment Center from mid-September to mid-May. Six plays will be featured including, "Cyrano de Bergerac," "Death in Canaan," "The Man Who Came to Dinner" and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," to mention a few. Call 213-436-3661 for information and dates.

"WHEN YOU CARE ENOUGH TO WATCH THE BEST"

19" REMOTE COLOR

Inside every MGA color TV, you'll find certain advantages over other color TV's.

We use five stages of video amplification, for example. Most other sets use only three stages.

We have a pedestal clamp video circuit to keep color rendition and image integrity constant. A peak limiter circuit to prevent glare, bleeding and phosphor damage. So unlike many others, our warranty is perfectly valid when video games are attached to our sets.

We have automatic color contrast, for better picture fidelity than the automatic brightness other sets offer. An in-line picture tube so that the largest MGA TV consumes only slightly more average power than a 100 watt light bulb. A factory policy of testing every set for 8 hours before shipment to weed out defective components.

And, thanks to that policy, a limited warranty that goes far beyond the 90 days offered by other manufacturers.

Outside every MGA color TV, you'll find cabinets that are made with wood, and not some tinny imitations.

Hathaway watercolors are on exhibit through August

An exhibition of watercolors by Withy Hathaway are on display this month in the Lobby Gallery of Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association, 399 N. Garey Ave., Pomona.

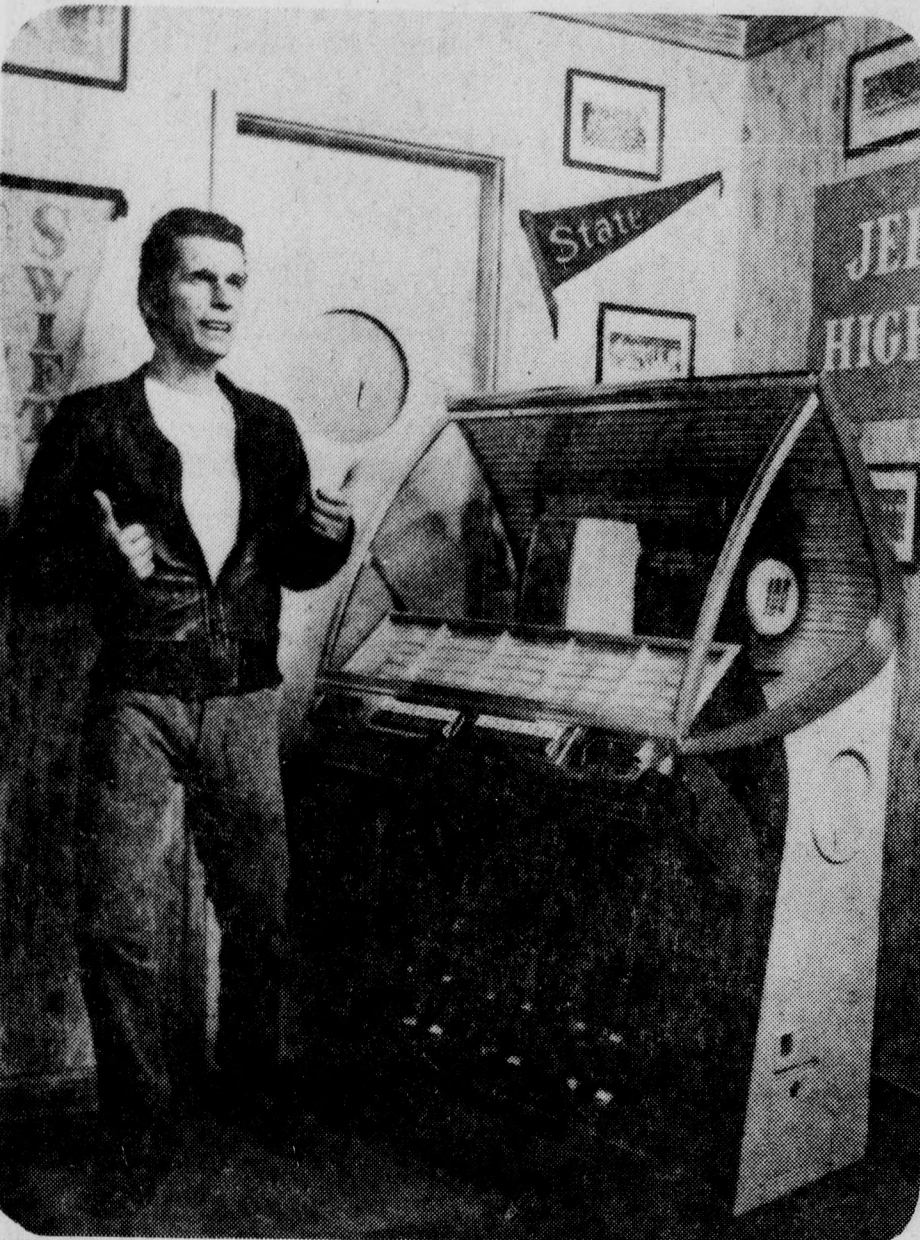

Born in Boston, Mrs. Hathaway has resided in Hawaii and Texas, but has spent most of her life in Pomona. She started taking art classes as a teen-ager, studied art at Pomona College where she graduated with a B.A. degree, and also has taken classes at Vesper George in Boston and schools in Texas. The artist has studied sumi-e painting in Little Tokyo, Los Angeles, and has taken print making and watercolor at Citrus College.

A class in watercolor and subsequent workshops taught by Milford Zornes started her working in her favorite media. Mrs. Hathaway likes to paint on location, especially places of historical interest. On trips she makes many sketches that give the result of polaroid photos, but are more fun to do and keep. The artist prefers the challenge, freshness and excitement of watercolor.

Mrs. Hathaway is secretary of the Pomona Valley Art Association and is also a past president. She has exhibited her paintings in many of the Association's revolving shows.

Surf fishing along the shore below Bajamar provides just one of the many recreational opportunities available at the Baja California resort community. Bajamar's golf course, tennis and swimming facilities overlook the Pacific Ocean 20 miles north of Ensenada.

Rugged coastline at Bajamar provides excitement for anglers

ENSENADA, MEXICO — Casting from the rocks along the rugged coastline of the new Bajamar resort community in Baja California is a fishing adventure that is attracting Southern Californians to this wild and beautiful country fronting the Pacific Ocean some 20 miles north of Ensenada.

It is a particularly tricky sport as the tides rush to and fro and the angler must time his casts to the incoming breakers while maintaining precarious balance on a rocky point.

But it's very productive and the hookups include calico bass, cabezon, kelp bass, buttermouth and, in the more subdued areas of sandy coves, opaleye taken with frozen peas on a floating hook.

Best thing is it doesn't take much in the way of gear — an 8 to 10 foot rod, spinning or conventional reel, 10 to 20 pound test monofilament, size 2 to 4 hooks, a selection of ocean sinkers and a variety of bait. The more adroit anglers even employ trout gear with as little as 6-pound test and have a marvelous time.

Wear rubber soles or tennis shoes and old clothing because it is almost a cinch you will get wet from flying spray, while a little wading sometimes may be needed to get the best spots.

Anchovies work exceptionally well for bait and pieces of cut squid are good. Clams and cut mackerel also attract the fish and so do mussels which the angler can pry from the very rocks from which he fishes.

On a recent trip, the early morning (6 to 8 a.m.) and the late afternoon (5 to 7 p.m.) tides were ideal, with the better fishing as dusk settled down.

Timing the cast with the breakers and then allowing the line to be swept shoreward proved the best tactics. When a calico or cabezon picked up the bait and the angler had his fish on, the ticklish business of getting his flapping catch up and over the rocks began.

It isn't an easy task and a lot of fish are lost as they take the line into submerged rocks, moss and bits of seaweed. Rather than try to pull loose and perhaps lose the whole rigging and the fish, it pays to put the reel into free spool and wait a bit. With the slack, the fish many times works itself free and the angler then can haul it in.

Bajamar is a new international resort community overlooking the Pacific that features a variety of sports including golf, tennis and swimming. The challenging 18-hole golf course, called "Mexico's Pebble Beach," is open to the public as is the clubhouse restaurant, offering excellent cuisine. Two beautiful beaches are in the area, La Salina three miles to the north and Salsipuedes six miles to the south.

For those who wish to add a day to their fishing, boats go out daily from Ensenada to Todos Santos Bay where the variety of fish includes white sea bass, yellowtail, bonito, calico and other varieties of bass.

Fishing licenses are required. They may be purchased in Los Angeles, San Diego, Tijuana and Ensenada, covering 30 days, or, if desired, a full year.

Transportation is easy via the Tijuana - Ensenada toll road to the Jatay off-ramp, 45 miles south of Tijuana

Fishing tops at North Shore

The Salton Sea — California's largest inland body of water — is literally alive with croakers, sargo and mollies, reports resident fishing authority Jimmie Melvin "Tex" Ritter, chief ranger at the Salton Sea State Recreation Area at North Shore.

Such a large population of these smaller species has one drawback for anglers, Ritter notes: it makes the larger and probably well-fed orangemouth corvina harder to entice.

Much of the know-how of fishing the Salton Sea has been put into a seven-page article in the July-August edition of Outdoor California, a publication of the Department of Fish and Game. The publication will be available about mid-August.

Persons who wish to obtain a copy of this edition can do so by subscribing. Subscriptions are $2 for six issues a year. They are available from the Office of Procurement, Publications Section, P.O. Box 1015, North Highlands 96660.

Allergy to poison oak causes itchy skin rash

Rhus dermatitis is an itchy allergic skin eruption which occurs after contact with poison oak, poison ivy or poison sumac. These plants, which are members of the plant genus Rhus, contain in their sap an active chemical called urushiol that causes an allergic skin reaction in some people. Urushiol is also found in the Japanese lacquer tree, the India ink tree, the rind of the mango and the cashew nut shell.

Not everyone is allergic to these plants, and no one is born with this allergy. It is estimated that about seven out of 10 Americans are capable of developing an allergy to urushiol if exposed.

While Rhus dermatitis can occur all year, it is most common during spring and summer months. The symptoms usually develop within 12 - 48 hours after contact but this can vary, depending on the degree of sensitivity.

The first symptoms are often redness of the skin and fluid-filled blisters. The patterns seen on the skin will frequently be linear, especially where the plant leaves have brushed against the skin.

Intense itching is the most noticeable symptom. After reaching their peak in 7-10 days, the lesions become crusty and begin to disappear.

The reaction generally occurs where the sap has contacted the skin, but the lesions can occur spontaneously at any site that has been affected previously. In those persons who have had one or more previous attacks, a new contact with the plant may produce swelling about the eyes and swelling of the throat. Stomach cramps may occur and are often accompanied by vomiting, nausea and diarrhea.

Urushiol is a long lived substance. It not only can remain on the skin causing the irritation to spread, it clings stubbornly to clothing, tools, the fur of pets and anything else that comes in contact with the plant.

These agents act as carriers and will re-expose the person every time they are touched until the urushiol is thoroughly washed off. The substance also remains in the plants long after they are dead or decayed.

Burning the plants can be harmful because the smoke contains the urushiol which, when spread through the air, can affect susceptible persons.

When treating Rhus dermatitis the most important consideration is to remove all traces of sap from the skin and clothing with soap and water. Wet cold compresses will help relieve the inflammation, and calamine lotion is useful to help dry the blisters and reduce itching. Lukewarm baths to which one-half cup of starch has been added may be helpful. A doctor should be consulted in severe cases.

Some points regarding prevention:

— Learn to recognize poison oak, ivy and sumac.

— Wear clothing that will cover the skin when hiking in areas that are known to have these plants.

— Wash all exposed body areas with water and a soap or detergent as soon as possible after exposure to the plant. Be sure to clean thoroughly under the nails.

— Remove all clothing and shoes that may have been in contact with the plants and wash them thoroughly with soap or detergent. Avoid skin contact with them until after the cleansing.

— Bath the family pet if it was in contact with the plants.

B. Grading Design
No grading permits shall be issued unless the grading plans have first been approved by the Planning Commission and it is found that the grading conforms to the standards set forth in Exhibit A, C, D, and E.

1. General: The intended grading techniques are illustrated on various exhibits in the appendix. Specific reference is made to Exhibits C, D, and E.
2. Lot Type Classification: Lots indicated on the Specific Plan, Exhibit No. A, have been classified as Type A, B, or C. In addition to the grading standards prescribed by Exhibits No. C, D, and E, the following grading techniques shall apply to these lot types:
a. Type "A" Lots: Type A Lots are located in areas which are relatively flat plateaus. Grading of the entire lot area is permitted on Type A Lots. The drainage of runoff water will be redirected to the adjacent streets.
b. Type "B" Lots: Type B Lots are grouped throughout the property. These lots are located on a locally located on minor inclined terrain which represents moderately sensitive landform. Grading on Type B lots is permitted for the placement of and access to permitted uses. The grading of the entire lot is not consistent with the intent of a Type B classification. Storm runoff will follow its natural course.
c. Type "C" Lots: Type C Lots are predominantly located along major changes in topography and are highly visible to the surrounding community. These lots are located on the most sensitive landform. Grading on Type C Lots is restricted to only that earth movement necessary for roadway access and excavation for retaining-type building foundations in rock shall be provided with signs of grading beyond the structures' main walls. The drainage of runoff will follow its natural course.
3. Cut and Fill Slopes: No manufactured slopes shall exceed a maximum of two (2) feet horizontal to one (1) foot vertical unless approved by the San Dimas Planning Commission. Manufactured slopes of less than two to one may be permitted where adequate slope control measures such as retaining walls and rip-rap embankments are utilized. The slope shall in no case exceed the natural angle of repose of the material. Cut and fill slopes shall be constructed to eliminate sharp angles of intersection with the existing terrain and shall be rounded and contoured as necessary to blend with the natural topography to the maximum extent possible.
4. Erosion Control: All manufactured slopes, other than those constructed in rock, shall be planted with vegetation to protect from the effects of storm runoff erosion and shall be benched or terraced as required to provide for adequate stability. Planting shall be designed to blend the slopes with the surrounding terrain and development. Manufactured slopes in rock shall be provided with soil pockets to contain landscaping where appropriate. Irrigation facilities shall be required where necessary to provide for property maintenance of the planted areas.
5. Slope Maintenance: All slopes shall be maintained in accord with one or both of the following provisions:
a. A declaration of Covenants, Conditions and Restrictions relating to the maintenance of slope areas, signed and acknowledged by those parties having a record title to the land to be developed and which are enforceable by the City shall be recorded. The Covenants, Conditions and Restrictions shall insure that:
1. All improvements located within the slope areas, such as landscaping and sprinklers, shall be maintained in a safe condition and a state of good repair.
2. Failure to maintain such improvements located on slope areas shall be unlawful and a public nuisance endangering the health, safety and general welfare of the public and a detriment to the surrounding community.

I. Landscaping
1. Design Concepts: The general design concept is to maintain the natural scenic quality represented by the existing natural vegetation. Introduced plant materials and landscaping improvements shall harmonize with the natural character of the site. The following landscape concepts refer to areas indicated on the Concept Plan, Exhibit B, hereinafter:
a. Graded Lot Concept: These areas are indicated as "A" Lots on Exhibit A. Conventional landscaping in these areas is permitted providing it does not detract from the overall natural community appearance.
b. Sloping Lot and Natural Lot Concept: These lots are indicated as "B" and "C" on Exhibit A and shall have landscaping designed to blend with the existing vegetation. Informal patterns of native materials, or materials which reflect the character of native materials, shall be used. Formal patterns, unnatural appearing shapes or assertive colors shall not be permitted.
c. Scenic Easement Concept: These areas are indicated as "D" areas on Exhibit B. To the maximum extent possible these areas shall remain in their natural state, with no removal of vegetation.
2. Landscape Plan and Material List: The landscape plan for all of any building permits, a conceptual landscape plan for the developer-installed landscape areas shall be approved by the Development Plan Review Board. For each phase a corresponding final landscape plan shall be approved by the same Board. The landscape plan shall clearly indicate general location, size and species of plant materials.
In addition to the landscaping to be provided by the developer, the developer shall submit with the above required landscape plan a complete Plant Material List for use by individual homeowners in their selection of plant materials.
3. Installation and Maintenance Responsibility:
a. Installation: All cut and fill slopes in excess of five (5) feet in vertical height shall be planted and irrigated with a sprinkler system to promote growth of plants and ground cover to prevent erosion. In developing site, the developer shall plant and maintain all slopes until the property is occupied by reason of lease or purchase. The developer shall provide suitable guarantees, satisfactory to the City Council for planting and maintenance herein required.
b. Maintenance: To insure continued maintenance of plant materials, an automatic irrigation system shall be provided to irrigate all landscaping provided by the developer. Sprinkler systems shall be designed to provide uniform water coverage. In no event shall the rate of precipitation or duration of sprinkling be permitted to create an oversaturated condition or cause an erosion problem. A functional test of the sprinkler or drip irrigation system shall be performed by the installer in the presence of a building inspector.
4. Signs
Prior to the installation of any sign, a Sign Program shall be approved by the Development Plan Review Board. The sign program shall show signs drawn to scale, dimensioned and easily readable, containing but not limited to, the following:
1. General location and bulk of major community identification or directional signs.
2. Location of major community components, such as streets, equestrian trails, permanent open space, viewshed easements, entry statements, and development areas.
3. Model complex signs.
4. Identification of property owner, architect, landscape architect, land planner, and contractor.
K. Lighting
All hillside public streets shall be provided with a level of street lighting designed to protect the health, safety and welfare of those living within the hillside area. Street lights shall be mounted on ornamental electrolights. Prior to the installation of any lighting or other developer-installed community lighting other than street lighting, a General Lighting Plan shall be approved by the Development Plan Review Board.
Spot, flood, or decorative lighting that intrudes into the Walnut Creek Wilderness Park shall not be permitted.
L. Fencing
Prior to the issuance of any building permits, a conceptual Fencing Plan for the entire development described herein shall be approved by the Development Plan Review Board. For each phase a corresponding final Fencing Plan shall be approved by the same Board. The Community Fencing Plan shall clearly indicate the location, height, type and materials and color selections for fencing along Valley Center Avenue and Main Avenue. In addition to the provisions of the above Fencing Plan the following standards shall apply:
1. Fences and walls within the front setback may not exceed forty-two (42) inches in height.
2. The maximum height for any fence or similar structure shall be thirty (30) inches within the triangular area formed by drawing a straight line between the two points located on, and twenty-five (25) feet distant from, any intersection of two streets.
3. The maximum height for any residential fence shall be six (6) feet. Exact location and style of fencing shall be as provided under the Community Fencing Plan.
4. Corral fences shall be metal pipe construction, a minimum of five (5) feet in height.
5. No fencing of any type is permitted in the Scenic easement indicated on the Concept Plan, Exhibit B, hereinafter.

SECTION 6. Plan Review
A. Review requirements: Before any building or structure is erected on any lot or parcel in Specific Plan No. 4, a development plan shall be submitted to and approved by the Development Plan Review Board, Planning Commission, and City Council, pursuant to the provisions of Article II, Chapter 7 of the San Dimas Zoning Ordinance, in addition to the standard development plan requirements, the above bodies, in approving a development plan for any lot or lots in Specific Plan No. 4, shall make the following findings:
1. The proposed improvements will maintain or enhance the existing character and purpose of Specific Plan No. 4.
2. The proposed improvements are in conformity with the viewshed area from the Walnut Creek Wilderness Park.
3. The house and appurtenances are sited in a manner that minimizes visual impact and disturbance to the natural terrain.
4. The architectural character, style, and use of materials harmonize with the natural setting.
B. Prior to submitting development plans, the applicant may meet with City Planning and Engineering staff members to discuss the plans and record approval to the Planning Commission and the City Council. Upon receipt of the recommendation from the Planning Commission, the City Council shall also approve, conditionally approve, or disapprove the development plans.
C. The applicant shall submit six (6) prints of the development plan to the Building Division and pay appropriate plan check fee. The plans shall be drawn to scale and shall include the following:
1. Proposed house elevations and floor plans.
2. Proposed grading plans.
3. Cross-sections and profile of roof (where required by the City Planning or Engineering Departments).

SECTION 7. Plan Disposition
A. Within thirty (30) days after submission of the development plans, the Development Plan Review Board shall consider the plans, and recommend approval to the Planning Commission with any conditions deemed necessary to protect the public health, safety and general welfare, or disapproval of the development plans based upon similar findings. Upon receipt of the recommendation from the Planning Commission, the City Council shall also approve, conditionally approve, or disapprove the development plans.
B. Amendments to Approved Plans: Development plans may be amended by the same person who provided for approval. Minor modifications, which do not substantially change the concept of an approved development plan, may be approved by the Director of Planning.

Housing needs for handicapped

Standards set by state

Members of the Pomona Valley Chapter of the National Organization for Women will be on the move again Aug. 26 when they participate in the National Walk-A-Thon for Equal Rights. Here, local members are shown at the NOW National ERA March early last month in Washington, D.C.

The state Commission of Housing and Community Development has just adopted regulations establishing, for the first time in California, the right of the physically handicapped to barrier-free housing.

By unanimous vote, seven members of the commission (all appointed by Governor Jerry Brown) voted to require builders of new apartment houses containing 10 or more units to make at least five percent of all units accessible to people in wheelchairs.

Where the application of the above percentage results in a fraction, the next higher whole number of units is required.

Such units must:

- Be accessible by walkways and ramps at least 42" wide.
- Have thresholds no more than one-half inch thick.
- Have doorways at least 30 inches wide.
- Have hallways at least 36 inches wide.
- Have at least 32 inches clearance in front of all cabinets and appliances.

— Have at least 42 inches clearance in front of all bathroom fixtures.

These regulations should provide about 5,000 new apartments accessible to wheelchair people each year," said Commission Chairman Myron Moskowitz. "We know that is not enough, but it is a good start."

"One of our main concerns is the cost of making these units accessible. We received rough estimates that these costs would require rent increases ranging from $6-$42 per month. After these regulations have been in effect for awhile, we will conduct some cost studies to see how much these requirements really cost. If the costs are low enough, we will expand our regulations to require more housing to meet these requirements."

NOW plans August walk-a-thon to raise funds for ratifying ERA

Final plans for participating in the National Walk-A-Thon for Equal Rights will be made by the Pomona Valley Chapter of the National Organization for Women during a social from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Aug. 25 at 507 Geneva Ave., Claremont.

The walk-a-thon will begin at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 26, in front of the Venice Beach Pavilion. NOW welcomes all who wish to walk to raise funds for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA). Both sponsors and walkers are needed. Interested persons may call 593-0302 for more information.

NOW also is offering a new style September-to-September calendar, which is available by calling the same telephone number.

Members of Pomona Valley NOW joined the 100,000 people who demonstrated early last month in Washington, D.C., to prove support for ratification of the ERA.

A NOW spokesperson said the amendment reads as follows: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex. The Congress shall have the power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article. This amendment shall take effect two years after the date of ratification."

The Pomona Valley Chapter of NOW is working for extension of the period for ratification, without reversal of votes to ratify. "Twenty-two of the 26 amendments to the Constitution were ratified without a time limit," the NOW spokesperson added.

The chapter welcomes new members.

Noisy boats will be cited

SACRAMENTO — Boaters at state recreation area lakes in Southern California are warned that using motorboats that do not meet noise-level requirements can result in citations and fines.

State park rangers at Lake Perris, Lake Elsinore and Silverwood Lake state recreation areas are contacting operators of noisy boats and taking them to a noise-level test station.

If the test indicates that the noise level is too high, the violator is given a warning or a citation.

Handicap placards available

The preferential parking license plates and placards for some disabled persons are available to the blind and to certain heart disease victims and can be obtained at all Department of Motor Vehicle offices.

Previous legislation gave the parking privilege to persons suffering from lung disease — such as severe emphysema — and to persons disabled by loss of limbs.

The blue placard bearing the wheelchair outline may be displayed in any vehicle transporting a disabled person. The placards, issued to the person and not the vehicle, cost $4. Temporarily disabled persons, such as those with broken leg, may be issued a placard for the duration of the illness or disability.

There is no additional cost, other than the regular vehicle registration fee, for the plates distinguished by the letters DP in several combinations.

The vehicles of disabled veterans, who also are entitled to parking privileges, carry plates with letters and number combinations containing the letters VET, VTN, and VTR. These are fee-exempt.

The placards and special plates permit parking in areas designated by a blue curb, in metered zones without payment of fees, or in limited-time zones without observing the time limit. They do not allow parking in bus stops, loading zones, or other prohibited areas.

Life devices may get more power

Residential customers of Southern California Edison Co. with household members requiring regular use of life-support devices are now eligible to receive an additional lifeline allowance of electricity, the company reported this week.

All residential customers of Edison presently receive lifeline kilowatt-hour allowances for basic needs such as lighting, cooking and refrigeration, the company pointed out. The California Public Utilities Commission has authorized the additional allowance to be made for those using such devices as iron lungs and dialysis machines.

However, electric lifeline allowances are not authorized for therapy equipment, such as whirlpool pumps and humidifiers.

Application forms for the additional lifeline allowance and doctor certification forms are available at local Edison offices.

New veteran pension program helps needy

By Alan Cranston

The U.S. Senate has unanimously passed a comprehensive bill to reform the nation's pension program for needy wartime veterans and survivors.

Most of the country's one million wartime veterans with low incomes who are totally disabled from non-service-connected causes or who are age 65 or older, and their survivors, would be better off under this program.

Passage of this bill is a major step in the five-year effort to correct the inequities in the VA's pension program. It will also save needy veterans and survivors from having to turn to welfare by assuring an income standard above the Department of Labor's poverty guidelines.

In addition, the new pension program guarantees comparable pension increase each time there is a cost-of-living increase in Social Security benefits.

This bill is not only humanitarian in its immediate effects on the lives of those who fought to protect our freedom, but after five or six years we estimate there will be significant cost savings that could rise to $1.7 billion or more annually by 1990.

The cost savings would result because the new program would not pay benefits to non-needy persons. There are pensioners who now receive $5, $6, or $7 monthly or larger benefits even though their incomes are far above the national minimum standard of need. This adds millions of dollars each year to the federal budget.

This is an added burden on all taxpayers which I consider unfair. Since this is a need-based pension program, new pensioners coming onto the program in the future should receive benefits only if they are in need.

VA pensioners who do not qualify or do not want to apply for the new plan will continue to receive their pensions under the terms of the present Veterans' Administration program.

Under the bill, a single wartime veteran would be assured of at least $3,240 a year. This minimum standard would be of the starting point for determining a veteran's pension.

That would mean a significant boost for all VA pensioners with incomes below the national minimum standard of need. The amount of the increase would depend on several factors, including outside income and number of dependents; but essentially, the new program will provide the greatest benefits to those most in need.

Another provision protects against inflation for pensioners with little or no income by preventing any reduction in pension based on Social Security cost-of-living increases. This protection applies only to the new program.

Elderly veterans and surviving spouses who work occasionally would be able to exclude the first $780 of their wages plus one-half of the rest. Catastrophically disabled veterans, usually younger veterans, would be able to exclude the first $1,560 of their wages plus one-half of the rest.

This current work-income exclusion has the fundamental purpose of avoiding any disincentive to work. People are discouraged from working if their pensions are reduced dollar-for-dollar by the wages they receive.

Government programs should never discourage people who want to work from doing so. If older or disabled pensioners are able to do so, let's encourage them to work to better their lot in life, contribute to society, and build their self-esteem.

The House of Representatives has passed a pension reform bill (H.R. 10173) similar in concept to the Senate bill. The House and Senate are expected to get together in conference to work out their differences.

Water Facts

Water districts may raise rates

The tremendous victory of Proposition 13, California's property tax limit initiative, has made a great impact on all our property tax rates and with the public services they provide.

It may be too early to judge the measure's effect on our water programs. However, much concern at the moment centers on several special water districts' ability to fund their share of the state water project costs.

Financing of the state water project consists of 31 water agency contractors, the largest both in terms of financing and population being the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California.

These contractors pay the state of California for construction and for operational costs of the dams, canals, pumping plants, and electrical power. The bulk of the cost of the state water project is paid for with interest by the water agencies, except for special allocations of money for flood control and fish and wildlife preservation.

Biannual payments provide for the capital costs of the water facilities. Monthly payments, which do not necessarily cover the amount of water delivered, provide for operational and maintenance costs.

The concern stems from some special districts' ability to pay their share of the obligatory bond because of the uncertainty of their financial status. Fourteen of the 31 contracting water districts have depended only on property taxes for revenue, and seven others have depended on property taxes very substantially.

The remaining 10 agencies have collected their revenue through their water fees. Because the Prop. 13 measure has limited property taxation, these special districts may fall short on their ability to pay. The state surplus will help ease the burden this year, but the doubts for the future are great.

Some alternatives are being considered. The Metropolitan Water District has sought a $9 rate increase for each 800,000 acre-feet of water sold. To take effect in September, if approved, the rate increase would raise an additional $7.2 million for the MWD. Also, there has been some talk of water districts being allowed some type of legislation to assist them in their ability to levy property taxes (above 1 percent) to pay their water bond obligation. When the approval for construction of the state water project was voted upon, there was no provision made for taxation to pay each district's share.

With the passage of Prop. 13 and the re-examination of our priorities in government spending, we must not forget the important role water plays in our state's economy.

Economists say inflationary trend to worsen

By GLENN ANDERSON
Staff Writer

By early next year, continuing inflation will put President Carter and the Federal Reserve Board "under enormous pressure to do something," a Claremont economist said Friday.

The economist told an audience composed largely of California savings and loan association executives that something could be either a credit tightening or wage and price controls.

Economists John Rutledge and Richard Sweeney of the Claremont Mens' College Applied Financial Economics Center presented the center's quarterly economic forecast.

Sweeney said, "We're coming to a crisis we've been building to over the past two years."

In their forecast, the two economists said continuation of current policy will make 1979 a year of 8 to 10 percent inflation, slow real growth (below four percent), high unemployment (around six percent) and high interest rates.

"Both the administration and Congress will dread going into the 1980 election with this economic outlook, and will be under tremendous political pressure to improve the economy," they said in a written forecast.

They predicted that either of the two options — a credit tightening or wage and price controls — would have unhappy outcomes.

The Federal Reserve Board could, under encouragement from Carter or on its own, curb money supply growth in order to dampen inflation.

Rutledge and Sweeney said the effect would be rising interest rates for six months followed by falling rates and, trailing behind, falling inflation.

But they said the unemployment rate would jump, perhaps to 10 percent or more, and would not start falling until the credit tightening was over.

They said President Carter "is unlikely to want to face the 1980 primaries with 10 percent unemployment even if it is falling."

However they said he would have no choice if the Federal Reserve Board were willing to "take the political heat" and start a credit tightening on its own.

They said many Administration officials, labor unions and Labor allies in Congress are opposed to wage and price controls but that the forecast economic situation will put on "great pressure... for some response."

Rutledge and Sweeney took the view that wage and price controls "by themselves, never work."

They said the result is shortages of some goods at controlled prices, leading to production cutbacks due to lack of goods needed in production and to rising unemployment stemming from production cutbacks.

They said a recession would follow in late 1980 or early in 1981.

Rutledge said continuing inflation is discouraging people from investing in productive resources like stock in manufacturing firms and encouraging investment in assets likely to maintain their value, such as housing.

He counseled the savings and loan executives to avoid locking themselves into long term investments whose interest yield could be outpaced by inflation.

City council ups construction fees

The Upland City Council has formally adopted a new schedule of building permit and plan check fees, increasing charges by about 15 percent.

Higher charges have been in effect since July and the council ratified the fee schedule at Monday night's council meeting.

Unlike other increased fees passed by many cities recently, City Manager Lee Travers and Robert Sullivan, Upland's chief building official, said the higher fees are in response to state-mandated services, not Proposition 13.

Travers said the new fee schedule is about 15 percent higher than the old fees.

The minimum fee charged by the Building Department was increased Monday night by the council from $10 to $25.

Sullivan explained that the state Uniform Building Code, which Upland adopted, sets the basic building fee schedule. However, he added that state legislation mandating new building - check services allows for increased fees.

He said energy regulations effective July 1 for new buildings are primarily responsible for the added work for the Building Department.

City employees will check new buildings against a list of standards regarding heat loss, for example, Sullivan said.

In the past two years, he added, fees collected by the department have more than covered the expense of staff time for the services. However, Sullivan pointed out any continuing surplus would depend heavily on future levels of building activity.

For a new home valued at $65,000, the new fee for a building permit is $252.

Hearing Aid Bank opening set Sept. 6

The Hearing Aid Bank is due to open Sept. 6 in the parish house of the First Baptist Church, corner of Euclid Avenue and Fifth Street, Ontario.

Applications will be accepted at that time. Roger Sagouspe, director, has announced, and hearing evaluations will start on Sept. 20 from 10 a.m. to noon and every third Wednesday thereafter. Myrtle Nichols of the Valley Hearing Aid Center in Ontario will give the evaluation and will advise the type and make of hearing aid best suited to the individual.

The purpose of the Hearing Aid Bank is to supply hearing aids to persons with impaired hearing who are financially unable to purchase a new aid. Eligibility will be determined on the basis of the Federal Government Income Level Index. Persons on Medi-Cal or a plan which will pay for an aid are not eligible.

Further information is available by calling the First Baptist Church office at 986-4533.

Department store to open in Upland

Mervyn's department stores has announced that its first San Bernardino County store, located at 233 Mountain Avenue in Upland, will open September 30.

The 76,000 square-foot facility will contain 12 sales departments featuring apparel, toys, jewelry, linens, draperies, fabric, and shoes.

It is the 47th unit in the Mervyn's chain, 43 of which are located in California, 11 in Southern California. Mervyn's which is headquartered in Hayward, in Northern California, began its expansion into Southern California three years ago.

Interviewing for more than 100 full- and part-time sales, stock and office positions will be conducted Monday through Friday of next week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Citrus Elementary School, 925 West 7th Street, corner of Mountain Avenue, in Upland.

Ice Cream Social

An Ice Cream Social will be held Saturday by the Sawdusters Square Dance Club at 8 p.m. at Taylor Hall, 1717 N. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont.

All square dancers are invited to dance to the calls of Bud Garrett. Round dancing will be cued by Carol McCrummen with the round-of-the-month being taught from 7:30 to 8.

Veteran's auxiliary

The Auxiliary to the Veterans of World War I, Barracks 2379, will meet at 1 p.m. Friday at the Salvación Army headquarters, Ontario. A potluck luncheon will be held at noon followed by the meeting.
